MAS-ICNA Convention 2008: Are Muslim Americans Ready to Accept the Change?

By Safiya Ravat

HOUSTON, TX: An American convert to Islam, Carmen Andries, said Saturday at a convention in downtown Houston that she feels so many immigrant Muslims are just hiding, living their lives day to day, afraid that any bout of activism might get them into trouble or labeled as terrorists.

"There's no way to dispel the myth that Muslims are terrorists unless Muslims go out there and show themselves as good members of society," Andries said.
